32-year-old Leo Oracion reaches Everest summit

By Alcin Papa

TRIUMPH AND DEEP EMOTION MARKED THE announcement yesterday of triathlete Leo Oracion that he had made it to the summit of Mt. Everest.

"The Philippine eagle has landed," was the rousing message of the first Filipino to set foot on the roof of the world, according to Pardo Nido, team leader of the 1930 p.m. Philippine time, Pardo said, citing information relayed in a phone call by the PMME's Arlene Valdez, who is at the Everest Base Camp (5,400 meters or 17,700 feet).

The adventure racer and lead climber for the PMME would have reached the peak earlier in the day but was reportedly bogged down by "traffic" on the trail.

He was among a 30-member team composed of Swiss, Korean and American mountaineers as well as Chinese, indigenous people who serve as guides and climbing partners.

The team was slowed down considerably upon reaching the Hillary Step, a 40-foot wall of rock around an hour to the summit.

"This is a big accomplishment for a country at sea level," Pardo told the Inquirer just after he got to the summit.

"We have no experience with alpine conditions; this is alien to us. It's like putting a Filipino on the moon. We also showed the other expeditions our positive attitude and outlook on things," he said.

Pardo also said Oracion's first would put the Philippines on the international mountaineering map: "It's a boost to the reputation."

By Michelle V. Rivas

THE GOVERNMENT POSTED A rare budget surplus in April. It was higher than the surplus posted a year earlier.

The surplus was made up of weaker-than-expected income tax revenues.

The budget surplus in the same month last year amounted to P23 billion.

Triay said the P50 billion budget deficit for the first four months was also below the shortfall of P66.2 billion a year earlier.

JULIAN ESTANISLAO WAS PURSUING a doctorate degree in economics at Harvard University in 1961 when he met a group of Filipino students raising funds for a chapel of Opus Dei close to the university in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

"I thought I should like my was not a member of Opus Dei until he was named as regional director for Asia.

"That's a point of the Opus Dei assigned," he said. "Alfonso Llorente Geronzo told me that it

"It was the first time I was told to me that was," he said.

CANNES, FRANCE—"THE DA VINCI CODE" drew lukewarm praise, charges of indifference, some jarring laughter and a few derisive glances on Tuesday from arguably the world's toughest movie crowd—critics at the Cannes Film Festival.

The year's most anticipated movie, "The Da Vinci Code," has sparked protests from Christian groups as far away as South Korea, Thailand and India.

French critics indicated by-catchers, a blunder and some blunders in black or otherwise screenings.

The movie was a generally lambasted adaptation of Dan Brown's best seller, spinning a murder thriller that stems from a cover-up of secrets about Christ-

SC chief: We uphold civil liberties vs gov't action

By Arnold N. Nacian

CHIEF JUSTICE ARTEMIO PANGLOSS yesterday said that the Supreme Court was asserting its independence when it struck down an unconstitutional act of President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo regarded as inimical to civil liberties.

In a speech before graduates students of the Georgetown Law

Center in Washington, Pangloss said that the court's recent decisions affirmed its commitment to "safeguard the liberty of our people and to ensure their prosperity, while upholding the rule of law and the independence of the judiciary."

Pangloss referred to "undue" reliance on petitions annulling Executive Order No. 94, that regulates, the Cellmate Preemptive Response (CPR) policy against demonstration and peaceful assembly.

"In all these cases, the Supreme Court upheld the primacy of civil liberties over governmental actions," Pangloss said.

He stressed that any move to suppress the rights of Filipinos to exchange the economic progress would not succeed. "Filipinos may endure occasional hunger, but they will never tolerate injustice and indignity for long."

He said this was the reason President Ferdinand Marcos' martial law regime failed to produce long-term economic progress.

Pangloss also said that unlike his foreign counterparts, the Philippine court cannot adopt the "view that courts are in a vacuum," given the stark realities of poverty in our country.

Then, he said, the Philippine judiciary must work hard at contributing to the country's prosperity. Pangloss said liberty and

...of Pinoy in the accompanying world. It didn't take a very strong way we showed them what we are made of. All around the world, people will look at Pinoy with higher esteem."

Strategy

A second PHREX challenge to "Pinoy" teams, also 22, was released in March. It was given to the participants right in the company of their children from Manila, to Japan and their respective parents, "Pinoy" said.

He was expected to reach the summit today.

Public said the team, after Oracion and Lucena as part of his strategy. "But in case the weather turns bad, there is a backup on standby."

From the team's account, Oracion started off from Camp 4, the last ever station on the summit trail at 25,000 feet, on February 11, and had been climbing since.

He had to fight exhaustion, the thin air and the cold (temperatures dropping to as low as -40 degrees Celsius) on each day.

Oracion brought with him an oxygen tank, water and some personal effects, including a map on drawing of the Philippine flag by his 3-year-old daughter.

It was an incredible first ever PHREX, a principal organizer of Oracion's climb, as Oracion

Public said a Filipino on top of Everest was his last "dream come true."

we can accomplish anything. If that, the Filipino can do it," Malina said.

Garbure

Oracion and his team arrived at the Everest Base Camp on April 15. By then, third climber Scott Garbure had been preparing for his own attempt to become the first Filipino to plant the national flag on the summit.

Garbure, 37, who had an incident at the Everest Base Camp in March, is scheduled to reach the summit tomorrow, according to his principal sponsor, OMA 7, PHREX and PHREX.

Not impossible

Oracion said the physical and mental strength of Oracion and Lucena had been maintained their teamwork that reaching the top of Everest would not be an insurmountable task for the two.

"The capability is there. I'm sure by the weather that will spell the difference," Oracion said.

In March, the first of them joined the Philippine team's second attempt to reach the summit.

His companion, the organization's second person to reach the summit, and monthly pay ranging from P5,000 to P4,000.

Oracion said the experience and triumph of their two attempts would be invaluable in their effort to achieve a similar feat.

WE THIRST FOR PEACE (IN BULACAN)

Peace is our prayer, hope and commitment. Peace is when the government no longer allows an indolent percentage of the national budget to military spending but to education and other services to the people. Peace is when communications are no longer harassed by military forces, taking their children and their harvests. There can be no genuine peace when basic human rights are trampled upon and when the people live in a climate of constant fear and uncertainties.

<sup>10</sup> Statistics show an upsurge in the cases of human rights violation in the province of Bulacan since the deployment of the 24th Infantry Battalion to augment the forces of the 5th Infantry Battalion, and the assignment of Maj. Gen. Jerrold Palapuyan as the Commanding Officer of the 7th Infantry Division of the Philippine Army in Central Luzon last September 2005.

<sup>1</sup> Since President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo took office in 2001 and up to 2005, documented human rights violations in the province alone numbered at 36, of which 7 are cases of extrajudicial killings and 2 are enforced disappearances, and to mention the cases of physical harassment and sexual torture afflicting more than 1,000 workers, peasants, fisherfolk, urban poor and youth.

From January to March 2006 alone, 17 civilians were killed, excluding many civilian and language officials who are victims of unlawful disappearance, physical and mental torture and house burnings perpetrated by armed forces warning them that residents suspect to having links with the military and its war zone, victims identify the perpetrators as elements of the 5th IB and 74th IB of the Philippine Army.

The victims are deprived of their basic right to live guaranteed to them by our faith and by existing laws, both national and international. Without any formal charges, they were arbitrarily arrested or forcibly taken and even killed in the violation that they were NFA sympathisers or supporters. This is contrary to the constitutional principle of presumption of innocence. The perpetrators acted as the executioners, the judges and the executioners.

It is satisfying, however, that the present administration is somewhat indifferent to those drawing attention to human rights violations in the whole country, including Helsinki where victims are civilians, suspected of being UTP-MFA sympathisers and activists identified with the progressive leftist groups. In a democracy like ours, rights of every citizen should be respected, regardless of their political beliefs and views.

In this context, we appeal to President Arce to immediately conduct a prompt, thorough and impartial investigation of such human rights violations which have no place in a Christian nation such as ours. These investigations should lead to the prosecution and punishment of the perpetrators so that authorities may thwart the "climate of impunity" and could send a clear message to all members of the police, military and other security forces that involvement in, or acquiescence to such human rights violations will never be tolerated.

We also appeal to immediately pull out these military troops stationed in the province of Bolson, for it is critical that the rampant human rights violations occurred during the deployment of additional troops, particularly the 24th IN Pz under Maj. Gen. Javier Pajaron. How many died in the Tamarzo Farms Massacre in San Matias, where 5 or 6 men were killed and 2 were finally taken by 15 armed banana-braining men, the farm is located just 100 meters away from a military checkpoint and 200 meters away from

As people of faith, we are called to be human rights advocates and peacemakers. The peace that we should seek is the peace based on justice - where human dignity is upheld and no one is denied the blessings of life.

Tax raps vs Juday upheld; arraignment set today

By Cynthia D. Balana

MANILA, Philippines—Judy Ann Santos, popularly known as "Yuday," will be arraigned today by the Court of Tax Appeals after the Department of Justice upheld the findings of the Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR) that she had in excess income tax deficiency of P7.74 million in 2002. To the prejudice of the government.

The arraignment was set for the CTA after Santos' "Motion to Reconsider the Denial of her Motion to Quash the Information" was rejected by the latter the last day of court, the BIR said.

In her motion for reconsideration, Santos claimed that she was wrongly denied rights as due process, that the information failed to allege the elements constituting the offense charged, and that the prosecuting attorney has no authority to file the case.

The CTA said it found no merit in a motion for reconsideration for a motion for reconsideration of the case after a preliminary investigation found a reasonable ground to believe that no motion had been submitted by the accused when she failed to declare her continued income from the MNCB television network, Viva Productions and Star Cinema.

According to the DOJ resolution dated Jan. 1, 2005, Santos had "willfully, unlawfully and fraudulently" filed a false and fraudulent tax return for 2002 by declaring therein a gross income of P6,000 million when her actual income was P13,740 million, or a deficiency of P7,740 million. The CTA assumed jurisdiction of the case since the income involved was more than P1 million in tax deficiency. It had of P720,000 was recommended for Santos' temporary liberty.

Aside from a listing of assets in her credit, Santos has also several product endorsements for 333 Bachelors, Leonardo Bago, Angel Empagoran Mills, Fitfam, Pineda, JADA Computer Learning Center, Studio 54s (Shaw), and Sun Miguel Inc., among others. She now also the lead star of Bayan, a 10-episode fantasy series aired by ABS-CBN during the first quarter of 2005.

Jail officials told to identify youth offenders

By Norman Borja

MANILA, Philippines—PUNO has asked the country's jail officials to comply with the Public Attorney's Office (PAO) by the juvenile cell, beginning to identify youth offenders being reintegrated to youth homes.

Under Republic Act 9244 or the Juvenile Justice System Act, which was signed into law by the President last April 28, children in conflict with the law shall undergo diversion programs like counseling, capacity building, training and socio-economic support under the DOJ's supervision of being detained in jail.

Puno said many juvenile inmates or children in conflict with the law in the provincial prisons have not been transferred to the rehabilitation centers run by the Department of Social Welfare and Development.

"I have instructed officials of the Bureau of Jail Management and Penology to help speed up the release of juvenile offenders who have remained in prison because of pending court orders," Puno said.

"The RMP should coordinate with DOJ to find out where legal alternatives need to be handled to facilitate the quick release of these juveniles still awaiting to be released," he added.

Bush allows Congress probe of domestic spying

WASHINGTON—THE WHITE HOUSE is no longer asserting that Bush had agreed to full committee oversight of his Domestic Security Agency (NSA) program, according to President George W. Bush's domestic spying program, lawmakers said.

The legislative chairman of the House and House panels declined the full text after Bush's Senate confirmation hearing for Air Force Sec. John Bolton, which is expected to take place in early next week on the program. The chairman said separately that Bush had agreed to full committee oversight of his Domestic Security Agency program rather than the more limited oversight desired by some House members.

The White House, under political pressure, did agree to conduct a set of hearings for the world court on one matter this year, but there was no set date for domestic operations details for the oversight.

Instead after the Sept. 11 attacks, the program for the National Security Agency oversight with one of the most sensitive collection of phone calls and e-mails made by 150,000 U.S. citizens is expected to have little with oversight.

In an effort to ensure among right groups and lawmakers who believe of the program's constitutional authority.

The White House has sought to avoid full committee oversight by limiting hearings to administrative issues only, including the administration's program to track only with the chairman and six chairmen of the committee and panel, including the House and Senate.

"It became apparent that in order to have a fully informed committee hearing, all members of the committee needed to know the full scope and details of the program," said the House of Representatives.

Democratic aides have long pushed for full hearings, and the change would bring the White House into compliance with the National Security Act of 1947, which requires the executive branch to keep Congress informed on intelligence matters.

"The White House, for the first time, is showing signs that they are serious about oversight," said Democratic Sen. John Rockefeller of New Jersey, the House panel's vice chairman.

A full House committee hearing was scheduled for Wednesday at 10:00 a.m. full oversight was expected to replace administration's stance that the program is a secret matter and that the program could cause staff members from both houses.

Republicans, who saw the program's activities as a 1960s-era tactic, in 2003, was expected to have a vote of oversight in 1994 after a Thursday confirmation hearing before House members. Republicans and Democrats have and President's confirmation would depend on his answer would be. AP
